NOTEWORTHY NEWS

Information and Technology Convergence Center
The Information and Technology Convergence Center, opened in fall 2014, and brought together a variety of technology, information, and teaching resources. It’s home to the Speaking Center, Writing Center, and Digital Knowledge Center. Students have access to a self-service multimedia production studio where they can work on video, computer, and audio presentations.

University Center
A new University Center, designed to meet the evolving needs of students and to improve the dining facilities on campus, will open next year. The entry level will offer a warm and welcoming space, with ample seating and a working fireplace. The 110,000-square-foot building will also house, in addition to dining, a “spirit shop;” a ballroom; student offices and meeting space; the Multicultural Center; and the Center for Honor, Leadership and Service.

EXCEPTIONAL QUALITY, EXTRAORDINARY VALUE

• The Peace Corps named UMW to its annual list of “Top Producing Colleges and Universities. The University currently has 13 alumni serving.

• Fiske Guide to Colleges 2015 designated UMW as a “Best Buy School,” making it the only college in Virginia and the District of Columbia reaching this distinction.

• The University of Mary Washington was named to the Princeton Review’s 150 “Best Value Colleges: 2012 Edition” and “The Best 379 Colleges” of 2015.

• Kiplinger’s Personal Finance magazine named UMW in its “100 Best Values in Public Colleges” for 2013. The university ranks fifth among Virginia’s best values and 53rd out of 100 four-year public institutions nationwide when comparing tuition costs.

• U.S. News & World Report ranks UMW third among “Top Public Regional Universities – South” category for its efficient use of resources and ability to provide a high quality education.
